After prayer, the meeting began with Paul Martin, the General Bursar, being questioned about his report. He had been given some of the questions in writing but also fielded many more from the floor after the table groups had discussed his report section by section. Paul, seemed to have ready answers and acknowledged some issues as possible improvements to the financial systems of the Society.

The facilitator, Michael French, was quoted as having said that he had worked with many congregations and the Marists were unusually open and transparent with respect to their finances. The last Chapter and ARC were given much of the credit for this.

In the afternoon the assembly looked at the issues raised by the survey of the Society, presented in a report collated by Tony Corcoran, the General Secretary.

Four key committees of the Chapter were then agreed upon - the names are listed in the sidebar.

The day was finished by commencing the Unit Presentations, where the Unit Leaders were given five minutes to highlight information about their region (under the threat of having their microphone turned off if they went over time.)
